Hirohito Will Remain As Spiritual and Moral Leader Of Jap Nation

TOKYO, Sept. 12—Gen. Douglas MacArthur will permit Emperor Hirohito to remain spiritual and moral leader of Japan, but his future as temporal leader awaits further developments.

The supreme occupation commander outlined these and other views on Japan to three correspondents representing the Allied press at his headquarters in Yokohama yesterday.

Don Starr of the Chicago Tribune, who was present for the combined American press, said MacArthur "made it clear the occupation forces would not tamper with the religious faith of the Japanese, thus leaving the emperor the spiritual and moral guide of his worshipful subjects."

"On the other hand," Starr said, "possible changes in the emperor's pastoral leadership are subject to future developments. There is room for hope that the emperor himself will display democratic liberalism."

"But for the immediate present, his position is a matter for speculation in which the general refused to indulge."

MacArthur's decision not to meddle with the emperor's spiritual powers means a perpetuation of Japan's Shinto religion, in which the emperor is regarded as a god who can do no wrong. Shintoism has been denounced bitterly by many critics of Japan.

Starr said MacArthur also: "I expressed the belief that Japan would be permitted to retain sufficient heavy industry to rebuild the nation, but under controls designed to rub out war industries completely."

President Announces Davis Resignation; Makes Many New Appointments

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—President Truman today announced a series of changes in federal district and appeals court benches and disclosed that he had appointed former attorney general Francis Biddle to be the American judge on the international military tribunal to try Axis war criminals.

Mr. Truman also announced the resignation of Elmer Davis as director of the office of war information, which is now in the process of liquidation. Neil Dalton, Louisville, Ky., who has been next to Davis in the OWI setup, will serve as acting director to preside over liquidation of the agency. The liquidation must be completed by the end of this year.

These are the judgeships filled by the President:

5 From Each House Will Try To Fix Blame For Sneak Attack On Nation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—Congressional leaders of both houses had before them today the ticklish problem of choosing the six Democrats and four Republicans who will serve on the committee to investigate the Pearl Harbor disaster.

A full-dress congressional investigation of the Dec. 7, 1941, surprise attack on Pearl Harbor was ordered yesterday when the house approved a senate resolution calling for a committee of 10 members—three Democrats and two Republicans from each house.

Acting senate president Kenneth McKellar told reporters he would announce the names of the senate members "pretty soon"—possibly today. "I haven't made up my mind," House Speaker Sam Rayburn said he would not be able to name house members today.

There appeared to be strong sentiment in the senate to put the floor leaders of both parties—Sens. Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., and Wallace H. White, R., Me.—and members of the military and naval affairs committee on the investigating group.

Asked if he had made himself available for appointment on the committee Barkley said, "I'd rather not talk about that."

There was little sentiment in the house to name either the floor leader or members of the military and naval committees to the investigating group. There was some indication that this matter would be talked over by Rayburn, McKellar and Barkley before any action was taken.

House members said floor leaders have heavy schedules without taking on new duties.

One member pointed out that members of the military and naval committees might find themselves in a position of having to justify their own prewar stands rather than devoting themselves to an impartial effort to fix responsibility for the nation's worst naval disaster.

If senate and house leaders steer clear of military and naval committee members in appointing the investigators, there is some likelihood that Sen. Scott Lucas, D., Ill., will be one of the senate Democrats, and possibly chairman of the committee.

Other senators mentioned were Republicans Homer Ferguson of (Continued on Page Two)

FIVE NIPS WERE ARRESTED FOR PLOTTING PEACE

TOKYO, Sept. 12—Tokyo's secret police rounded up five prominent Japanese last June in an alleged peace plot aimed at under-cover negotiations with the United States and Great Britain, the United Press learned today.

Shigeru Yoshida, former ambassador to Britain, was charged with being the ringleader and augmenting the peace movement through British channels.

The others, held under guard in their own homes, were Marquis Moritatsu Hosokawa and Count Asuke Kabayana—both former friends of U. S. Ambassador Joseph Grew and charged with attempting to contact him; Baron Kumao Harada, secretary to Prince Saito who is an adviser to Hirohito; and Seikichi Kimura former governor of Fukuoka-Ken province.

The group is reported to have held five meetings and launched peace feelers toward Britain and the United States. After doing this, they sent resolutions to Prince Konoye which resulted in the police descending upon them.

Reporters Learn First Atomic Bomb Left No Deadly Radioactivity

OSCURA, N. M., Sept. 12—Twenty-one news correspondents walked into the world's first atomic bomb crater here Sunday and today Japan stands branded as a liar for her claims that continuing radioactivity—x-rays—killed persons who went into atomized Hiroshima after the August 5 smash.

Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, commanding general of the atomic bomb project, charged that Japan's lack of medical skill and not lingering x-rays was the real cause of continuing deaths in Hiroshima.

Groves based his charges on new Japanese reports just transmitted to the United States by American experts studying the effects of history's first atomic bombing of living human beings.

Groves said the Japanese now admit that all harmful radioactivity had disappeared from Hiroshima 11 days after the blast.

The Japanese also admit, he said, that the "relief workers" whom radio Tokyo claimed were fatally burned by entering Hiroshima after the bombing were actually survivors of the atom blast.

They were in the city when the bomb hit. They received radio burns then. And, Groves said, Japanese medical men either failed to examine their injuries properly or did not treat the victims "as we know how to treat these burns."

Meanwhile the 21 correspondents and photographers to whom the government showed the first experimental crater here are Hale and hearty proof that Japanese propagandists lied in their appeal for world sympathy.

The newsmen were flown to the Alamogordo air base and traveled over 100 miles by motor coach to the arid valley at the foot of the Oscura mountains.

Before alighting from the buses they were handed canvas "boots"—merely to make sure you don't pick up any stray particle that might be (radio) active," Groves told them.

They stepped out on a brittle crust of gray-green glassy substance. That was the earth's surface that had been fused by the terrific heat of the blast. It cracked like crusted snow when they walked on it. They picked up and pocketed bits of the crust.

They were then taken to the top of the crater, 300 feet deep, and shown the remains of the atomic bomb. They were shown the remains of the bomb, which had exploded at the bottom of the crater.

The crater? There wasn't one as we know it. There was a wide area, roughly

PLANE CARRYING WAINWRIGHT IS JAPS' TARGET

SOUTH PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 12—Two weeks after the Japanese had accepted Allied surrender terms, a Jap suicide pilot tried to down the bomber carrying Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright and other high-ranking former prisoners from Chungking to Manila, it was revealed today.

Three members of the department of agriculture's production and marketing administration—Asst. Director James H. Marshall, E. T. MacHardy, and L. R. Ammon—will speak for the government. The OPA delegate is E. G. Pickett, chief of the sugar branch, food rationing division.

Lt. Col. Payne Jennings, pilot of a bomber taking Wainwright to Manila on Aug. 30, said in a letter to his wife, Mrs. Eleanor W. Jennings, South Pasadena, that the attack occurred near Hong Kong.

"I was in the passenger quarters of the plane when a Jap suicide fighter plane made a pass at us as we crossed the China coast near Hong Kong," Jennings wrote.

He said he ran forward and took over the controls, eluding the Jap plane by diving into a cloud bank.

Besides Wainwright, passengers included the "governor of Malaya"—presumably British Lt. Gen. A. E. Percival, governor of Singapore when it fell to Japan in 1942.

Foreign Ministers Study Peace Treaties With Reports Barred

LONDON, Sept. 12—The foreign ministers of the big five and their deputies began consideration of peace treaties for Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland today.

The move was additional evidence of this government's disfavored attitude toward the military dictatorships of both Spanish-speaking countries. It was considered significant in view of the stiffening attitude of the Truman administration toward them.

The action was not in any sense an application of sanctions, but diplomats expected it to have nearly the same psychological effect.

The foreign economic administration lifted about 75 percent of its wartime controls over exports to all non-enemy countries except Argentina and Spain. For "political reasons," FEA said, wartime controls under which licenses for export are needed will still be maintained for Argentina, Spain, Austria, Bulgaria, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Romania, Korea, and the former Philippines, half-smothered in horse manure.

Official British sources pointed out that if Russia had intended to raise her demand, the logical time would have been at the organizational session yesterday. There was nothing to indicate that Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov had pressed the point.

Deputies to the foreign ministers met at 11 a. m. today to settle technical details of the agenda to come before the plenary session at 4 p. m. (11 a. m. EWT). Last night's communiqué said that other subjects would be considered once the peace treaties have been completed.

Under a plan of rotation of chairmen, Molotov presided over today's meeting. Others present include U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shih Chieh.

The US sent registered letters to 86 basic steel manufacturers demanding that the producers meet with the union Sept. 25 to discuss a $2-a-day increase for 1,000,000 steel workers.

The demand was the union's answer to President Truman's plea that reconversion be speeded by creating more jobs through increasing purchasing power. The USW demands would increase the purchasing power of the steelworkers and their families by $520,000 a year.

It appeared that official news developed at yesterday's 3 1/4 hour session, the ministers succeeded in keeping them secret. London's top-flight diplomatic observers were limited in their comments in morning newspapers to last night's vague communiqué.

TOJO IS GIVEN GOOD CHANCE TO FACE TRIAL

Yank Sergeant Gives Blood So 'He Can Get What's Coming To Him'

Tojo's condition was described as "very satisfactory" at 3 p.m. (2 a.m. est) at the 98th evacuation hospital in Yokohama, to which he was removed last night after shooting himself below the heart as American officers sought to arrest him at his suburban home.

Sgt. John A. Archinal of Allentown, Pa., a six-foot mess sergeant with the 98th hospital, volunteered to give the direct blood transfusion that supplemented Tojo's treatment with plasma and penicillin.

Pleaded To Die

Earlier Tojo had pleaded with American doctors to let him die, but he rested comfortably with eyes closed and ankles crossed off the hospital bed as Archinal's blood coursed into his veins. His eyelids flickered as photographers' flash bulbs ignited.

"I did this," Archinal explained to newsmen, "so that he can get what's coming to him and to make him suffer for making me spend 21 months in New Guinea, Moro-tai and the Philippines."

The transfusion was supervised by Capt. Ray Gold of Montreal, Canada, assisted by Lt. Rebecca Schmidt of Long Green, Md.

"I never thought we would come to this," Lt. Schmidt said.

Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, and Col. Robert Egeberg, personal physician and aide to MacArthur, visited Tojo at 11 a.m. Eichelberger said the 61-year-old former premier would be given the best medical care.

He said he believed Tojo had used a revolver taken from a downed American airman in the suicide attempt. It was .32 caliber colt bearing the serial number 535,330 which Eichelberger said appeared too high to have been of pre-war manufacture.

Just before Eichelberger's visit Tojo had kept repeating to doctors who were fighting to save his life: "I'm going to die. Don't bother with me."

Tojo had assumed full responsibility for starting the Pacific war in what he obviously believed were to be his dying words yesterday after putting a bullet through his chest. As premier, he had ordered the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Others Listed

Counter-intelligence headquarters, meantime, revealed that the following war criminals had been rounded up in addition to Tojo and Streeter:

Maj. Charles H. Cousins, Australian army officer and former Sydney radio announcer who allegedly broadcast over Japanese stations.

Jorge B. Vargas, former puppet Filipino ambassador to Japan, his two sons, Eduardo, 21, and Gregorio, 19, also were arrested.

Heinrich Stahmer, German ambassador to Japan, placed in protective custody at Odawara, a resort area south of Yokohama.

Still sought were members of Tojo's "Pearl Harbor" cabinet, Japanese army officers and prison guards accused of atrocities, and assorted Burmese, Siamese and Filipino collaborators.

A Domes broadcast said Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, navy minister in the former Tojo cabinet, told a newsmen that he had changed his mind about committing suicide and was calmly awaiting arrest and trial.)

FORMER JAP POW WILL RETURN AS NIP MISSIONARY

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 11—Because he sincerely believed "that it must not happen again to any man," Staff Sgt. Jacob D. Deshazer, 32-year-old Doolittle flier, wrote his mother today that he was prepared to return to Japan as a "missionary for Christ."

Forty-one months of starvation and mistreatment in a Jap prison camp had physical effect on the Tokyo flier. But as for his spirit, he wrote his mother, Mrs. H. M. Andrus of Salem, "it was well kept with the firm knowledge that Jesus would see me through."

Deshazer, in a "deplorable" condition after his rescue from a Jap prison camp three weeks ago, said that God had spoken to him during his solitary confinement in a Jap prison.

Quoting the biblical words of Christ, "love your enemies; bless them that persecute you; do good unto them that hate you and pray for them that spitefully use and persecute you," Deshazer informed his mother that he would return to Japan just as soon as he could complete a four-year course at a religious college.

U. S. PLACES ARGENTINA IN 'ENEMY' GLASS

Refrigerators, washing and sewing machines and other durable goods except new and used automobiles; caterpillar tractors; machine tools, aspirin, penicillin, all vitamins except vitamin A and sulfa drugs; transportation equipment including locomotives, freight cars and repair parts; automobile repair parts except storage batteries; rayon fabric and clothing and all woolens except worsted and broad-woven cotton goods; all paper and paper products except newsprint; aviation gasoline, kerosines, asphalt and distilled spirits.

The many nations who hope to shop in the U.S. however, still will not be able to purchase everything they want free of restrictions.

Most foreign nations also still retain import restrictions in an effort to limit their use of foreign exchange to items essential for reconstruction.

FEA also framed what it called a "positive list"—a group of commodities for which special export licenses still must be obtained from the agency by all foreign nations.

These included almost all foods: hides, skins and leather; all cotton piece goods; most rubber items; building materials such as lumber, timber, cast iron piping, bathtubs, metal lathes; new and used automobiles; many chemicals including DDT; gasoline and lubricating oil; steel mill products containing tin, including tin cans.

Sidney H. Scheuer, executive director of FEA's bureau of supplies, said items on the "positive" list were largely materials "essential for the defense of the U.S." Like uranium and high explosives, items included in commitments to the liberated nations such as leather and foods or materials so scarce there is danger that additional markets may increase inflationary pressures and threaten the price structure.

Police said he had broken the rear window of the car, connected a rubber hose with the exhaust, drawn the hose into the car and started the motor.

When asked whether Parker was under consideration for the high court, as had been persistently reported, the President would not answer.

Mr. Truman said that he still is under consideration for the filling of the supreme court vacancy, occasioned by the recent retirement of Justice Owen W. Roberts, but had not made up his mind. He said he expected to make an announcement within a few days about the appointment of a new solicitor general.

TOJO IS GIVEN GOOD CHANCE TO FACE TRIAL

Tojo's condition was described as "very satisfactory" at 3 p. m. (2 a. m. est) at the 98th evacuation hospital in Yokohama, to which he was removed last night after shooting himself below the heart as American officers sought to arrest him at his suburban home.

Sgt. John A. Archinal of Allentown, Pa., a six-foot mess sergeant with the 98th hospital, volunteered to give the direct blood transfusion that supplemented Tojo's treatment with plasma and penicillin.

Pledged To Die

Earlier Tojo had pleaded with American doctors to let him die, but he rested comfortably with eyes closed and ankles crossed off the hospital bed as Archinal's blood coursed into his veins. His eyelids flickered as photographers' flash bulbs ignited.

"I did this," Archinal explained to newsmen, "so that he can get what's coming to him and to make him suffer for making me spend 21 months in New Guinea, Morotai and the Philippines."

The transfusion was supervised by Capt. Ray Gold of Montreal, Canada, assisted by Lt. Rebecca Schmidt of Long Green, Md.

"I never thought we would come to this," Lt. Schmidt said.

Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, and Col. Robert Egeberg, personal physician and aide to MacArthur, visited Tojo at 11 a. m. Eichelberger said the 61-year-old former general would be given the best medical care.

He said he believed Tojo had used a revolver taken from a downed American airman in the suicide attempt. It was .32 caliber colt bearing the serial number 535,330 which Eichelberger said appeared too high to have been of pre-war manufacture.

Just before Eichelberger's visit Tojo had kept repeating to doctors who were fighting to save his life: "I'm going to die. Don't bother with me."

Tojo had assumed full responsibility for starting the Pacific war in which he obviously believed was to be his dying words yesterday after putting a bullet through his chest. As premier, he had ordered the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Others Listed

Counter-intelligence headquarters, meantime, revealed that the following war criminals had been rounded up in addition to Tojo and Streeter:

Maj. Charles H. Cousins, Australian army officer and former Sydney radio announcer, who allegedly broadcast over Japanese stations.

Jorge B. Vargas, former puppet Filipino ambassador to Japan, his two sons, Eduardo, 21, and Gregorio, 19, were also arrested.

Heinrich Stahmer, German ambassador to Japan, placed in protective custody at Odawara, a resort area south of Yokohama.

Still sought were members of Tojo's "Pearl Harbor" cabinet, Japanese army officers and prison guards accused of atrocities, and assorted Burmese, Siamese and Filipino collaborators.

(A Dome broadcast said Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, navy minister in the former Tojo cabinet, told a newsmen that he had changed his mind about committing suicide and was calmly awaiting arrest and trial.)

MacArthur declined to discuss his own wishes in regard to returning to the United States. He said that he would obey the orders of his government.

"Whether he will be invited to return temporarily for the honors due him did not enter the discussion," Starr said.

"The question of the retention of the emperor was dealt with in a manner to leave the distinct impression that the general is proceeding with full knowledge and understanding of the Japanese people..."

"He (MacArthur) pointed out that Hirohito had obeyed every order issued under the name of the Allied commander since the occupation began, but on the other hand the emperor had made no requests on his own behalf."

Though a great number of Japanese troops remained under arms at the end of the war, MacArthur said they were "absolutely ineffective because of their isolation in small . . . groups incapable of united action at the spots where they were most sorely needed."

"Army supplies were so low that troops could not have been fed six months hence," he said.

Indirectly answering critics of his delay in exercising controls over the Japanese, MacArthur said he purposely moved slowly so as to liberate Allied prisoners, demobilize Japanese military personnel and land sufficient troops to put down any disorders.

ASHVILLE

About fifty Ashville teachers and members of their families enjoyed a hamburger fry and picnic lunch at the school building Monday evening.

Representatives of the Ashville Community Club, the Boy Scouts, the Civilian Defense Salvage Committee, the board of education and the village council met in the Ashville school auditorium Monday evening to discuss plans for a memorial for local people who have served in the Armed Forces and their auxiliaries. It was decided to give the Community Club authority to act for all groups in this project with the Club limited in its scope to considering a community swimming pool, as the proposed memorial.

The Club plans to meet Monday, September 24 to perfect plans for the solicitation of funds for the proposed memorial and to work out further details. Several local organizations have funds available for the memorial and spokesmen for the groups expressed the belief that a swimming pool will be a satisfactory memorial. It has been suggested that the pool be dedicated to veterans of World War I also since no formal recognition has been given to those service men in this community.

Mrs. Walter L. Harris is assisting Mrs. Claude Kraft in instructing the first grade which is above average in enrollment. This plan makes it possible for all beginning pupils to receive a full day's instruction each day.

The Lutheran congregation and Sunday School picnic will be held Friday in Community Park beginning at 5:30. Members are urged to attend, bringing well-filled baskets, table-service, and sweetened tea.

OHIO CATTLE CROP DECREASES REPORT SHOWS

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12—Ohio was one of three states in the 11-state corn belt area which had fewer cattle on feed August 1 than on the corresponding date of 1944, the Ohio Crop Reporting Service said today.

There was a 16 percent increase in the number of cattle on feed in the area as a whole, the service said. Michigan and Indiana were the only other two states to show decreases. Despite the increase, the number of feed cattle in the area was the second lowest since 1937. Last year was lowest.

The service said Ohio showed a five percent drop in the number of cattle on feed this year as compared with a 70 percent increase in South Dakota. Feeder cattle dropped 15 percent in Michigan and 10 percent in Indiana.

Ohio's anticipated lamb crop was expected to be below 1944. The service said the 1945 lamb crop would be about 1,100,000, as compared with 1,057,000 in 1944 and a 10-year average of 1,294,000.

Ohio farmer had greater luck saving their new-born lambs this year than last, however. The service said 88 out of every 100 newborn lambs survived in 1945 as compared with only 83 in 1944. Ohio farmers had 1,163,000 breeding ewes on hand last January 1 as compared with 1,275,000 January 1, 1944.

PAY FOR IDLE TIME

THERE seems to be almost an epidemic developing in this country now, in the form of unemployment compensation acts. They tend to provide unemployed workers with compensation of about $15 to $20 a week for a period of about 20 weeks. Labor organizations have been demanding as much as $25 a week for 26 weeks.

This procedure may spread through the country, perhaps varying mainly only in the amount of compensation allowed. A logical case can be made for it on general principles. Some people, however, are alarmed by the trend, asking whether this isn't a step in the direction of an ancient Roman procedure. The government there started supporting idle labor in hard times, and eventually found that it had developed a permanent institution, supporting a forum full of unemployed Romans all the year round.

Surely we could do better than that, through wiser handling of the unemployed.

CODE CRACKERS

NEXT to the discovery of the atomic bomb, the prize for the war's most difficult intellectual achievement might as well go to the United States navy intelligence for its work in unravelling the Japanese secret ciphers. This, according to Australia's defense minister, John A. Beasley, enabled our fleet to anticipate Japanese ship movements, and was the decisive factor in winning the victory of the Coral Sea.

Japanese is one of the world's most complicated languages, largely because of its different systems of writing, and the uncertainty as to how the written characters should be pronounced. Add to this the perplexities of a code which is hard to decipher in any language, and the combination must be tops for difficulty.

Just one more reason for being proud of the navy.

Americans would probably like the Japanese better if they were less polite to our occupying forces. After all their cruelties to American prisoners, this deference savors of servility or of hypocrisy.

SURVIVING BUSINESS

LIKE voices from the dead are the letters now beginning to reach American librarians and other bookbuyers from European firms in the countries conquered by Germany. Nothing had been heard from them for five years, and the worst was naturally feared. While many terrible things did happen (a Dutch dealer speaks of three clerks wilfully shot by the Nazis), at least many have survived and managed to keep their businesses going.

People are now rousing about housing.

Human Beings Now Tell Wagging Science's Dog

• WASHINGTON—This self-important capital, now that the hour of surrender has passed, seems to me like a world swept clean by a great tornado.

Peace, after the worst holocaust in the history of mankind, has come to us at last. But it is a peace bought at an awful price.

As we creep out of the storm cellar in which each of us hid after our own fashion while the war raged, we are shocked at the extent of the destruction. We see trees down, cities flat, houses wiped out. Many are homeless, jobless, without much hope for the future.

The task ahead is grim and dispiriting. No more hurrah to whip us on. No more beating of drums and shouts of patriotism and world saving. No more orders to report next Tuesday at some spot which, however hateful it may prove to be at the moment, gives promise of adventure and a dead gloriously done.

We must look after ourselves for a while now. Nobody will tell us what to do and lend us uncheckered sums with which to do it. You and I will have to prop up our own tumbled down civilization. Clear away the wreckage of insanity. Start fresh. Change to a new gear. Turn a clean, white page.

The prospect frightens me. Especially since science, having sprung ahead so ferociously, has made the human being into the tail that wags the scientific dog. We think we are everlasting smart. We are smart. But we are still lopsided thinkers. And mostly crazy with victory.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—The saddest looking block in midtown Manhattan is the one on West Fifty-Second street just off Fifth avenue that won international fame as "Swing street." The wreckers have moved in on part of it so radio city can grow a little more.

At one time there were two dozen small night clubs in this block, most of them the homes of hot jazz played by small combinations—piano, bass, cornet, drums and the like. Ten years ago the place was really jivin' as the swing music craze went into high. Somebody made a bad motion picture called "Fifty-Second Street" built around a one-time aristocratic brownstone house turned into a jazz-mad joint.

Now about a third of the south side of the block has been leveled by the wreckers. In a couple of places only the stone steps and landings remain as a reminder of the brownstones that once stood there and the clubs that occupied them.

Some of the other buildings will go too and already they are empty, with the tawdry names and exterior decorations of vanished cabarets making the scene all the more desolate.

One of the surviving institutions of the block is the Club 18 where the late zany Jack White held forth for so many years. This was not a hot jazz spot, just a miniature crazy house. Freddie Lamb, who has run the club since White's death, left the block when warm weather set in and moved his operations to a Long Island beach for the Summer. He's coming back to Fifty-Second shortly but not in "the block." Club 18 will be in the second block west of Fifth.

On the north side of the street those other institutions, Leon & Eddie's and "21," will remain. But they, of course, are not in the swing category either. "21" even went in for some large interior changes during its recent Summer closing.

The few remaining typical swing clubs may stick it out for a while—some of them have to vacate, some don't—but the block will never be the same again. Even if a lot of clubs should follow Club 18 into that next block, thus technically retaining jurisdiction for Fifty-Second, the thoroughfare couldn't be called "Swing Street" anymore.

"Swing Street" was a particular block and the spirit (and spirits) that made it can't be put into a moving van.

The West Coast will be pleased to know that the national company of "Oklahoma!" is on the way. It'll be months before it gets there but it's finally fought its way out of Philadelphia after 19 weeks and started to fulfill the season's touring promises by opening for two weeks in Washington. After that, two weeks in Baltimore.

Bobbysock note: Wednesday at 9 p.m. EWT, CBS network. Frankie Sinatra, naturally.

There'll be a few changes this season, but the main thing, of course, is Frankie's vocalizing. There'll be no set guest star policy, but a guest may be used occasionally. There's no girl vocalist this time either.

The premiere is from Hollywood, which makes the New York police department very happy.

DIET AND HEALTH

Preventing the Common Cold

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHETHER in time of war or in time of peace, absenteeism from industry is a problem that needs prompt solution. Probably the greatest cause for absenteeism is the ordinary cold. It is true, colds for the most part occur during the colder weather, but there are times, even during the summer months, when epidemics of colds seem to get started and sweep through large groups of people.

In industrial plants there are three kinds of measures which are needed to keep epidemics of colds from occurring. First, there should be proper working conditions and services for safeguarding the employees' health. Second, the employees should receive proper instruction in protecting themselves; and third, the employees should do certain things to help maintain their health and well-being.

Heat and Ventilation

For example, the management can provide properly heated and ventilated work rooms so that there will be no unnecessary exposure to either cold or excessive heat. Then, too, there can be protection against drafts.

All eating utensils can be properly washed and sterilized to keep them from acting as a means of carrying germs. It is a good plan, should an epidemic occur, to have the washing and sterilizing processes checked to make sure that they are satisfactory and efficient.

Of course, anyone engaging in the handling of or the preparation of food should be sent home if he has a cold. Workers should also have properly heated locker rooms where they can change their clothes.

Since colds are most infectious at the beginning, it is a good plan when cold first starts to go home and stay there until the infectious period is past and also to help keep the cold from getting worse.

SYNOPSIS

SANDRA EDWARDS is an attractive, red-headed dress designer who volunteers to take 11-year-old SPENSER WITTINGTON, an English boy, into her home, into her five-room apartment to live for the duration of the war.

BELINDA ADAMS is the little girl who lives at the ranch where Sandra and Spenser are staying. Her life is a sad one, too, because of the absence of her mother.

ESTERINA SPENSER attempts to draw Spenser's mother, describing his life as a much more unhappy one than Belinda's. Sandra learns that Belinda has only contempt for Spenser and downright hatred for her.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THE HATRED on Belinda Adams' face was so intense that it made Sandra catch her breath. She felt sick. She could not understand the child's animosity. There was no reason for it. Yet, there it was, bitter and unmistakable. Sandra was relieved when the little girl stood up.

"Excuse me," she said briefly, "I must get to school."

As if her rising were a signal, all the younger cowboys stood also. And Spenser, Sandra was amused. He had shouted at Belinda and insulted her, yet he leaped to his feet when she did. But the gesture meant no deference toward the little girl. Sandra knew that. The display of manners was not deliberate; it was automatic.

The ranch employees mumbled farewells and began to amble out through the kitchen, their boot heels making a pounding noise. Belinda moved in the opposite direction. Spenser sat down and reached for another biscuit.

Over her shoulder the little girl informed her guests: "Estela will see that you have lunch."

Brody trailed along. "Lindy, you'll want a horse this morning, won't you? It's so muddy."

"No, I'd rather walk. I'll be all right in these clothes."

"Don't wear those clothes," the old man pleaded. "Wear a nice little pretty dress, Lindy."

"I don't want to wear 'nice little pretty dress,'" she snapped.

"You'd be so much prettier."

"I don't want to be pretty. I couldn't if I tried. And I don't want to," she said again. "Why should I? It only causes—" Her words faded. She and Brody had reached the living room.

Sandra was unable to hear the last. She turned to Spenser, but apparently he had not been listening to the range with the cattle. I'm a little old for that, so I stay here and help Estela. And Lindy."

Sandra said: "I'll wager you're as spry as any of those fellows, Brody. But it is nice having you around here." She knew if it were not for Belinda that the old cowboy would hop into a saddle and ride with the others.

They were in the darkened dining room now. Brody said: "When the their ponies were tied to a thick log hitching post before the rambling bungalows."

Turning away, she walked, almost silently, through the deserted dining quarters into the living room. She was so quiet that she was directly back of Brody before he heard her.

He whirled, then swung back again, not bothering to make a pretense of doing anything except what he actually was. He was watching Belinda trudge down the deep-rutted road.

His voice sounded like a creaking metal sign. "Look at her. Slogging along in all that mud. Kids are so stubborn nowadays. They make themselves feel even worse than they have to."

Sandra moved closer. "Yes. They do. How well I know."

"It just don't make sense. Lindy's better fixed than any kid in Copper Creek. She's better fixed than lots of kids in even bigger places and she looks like a little tramp without a penny to her name. On purpose. It just about kills me, Miss Edwards."

"I feel sorry for her, too, Brody."

Just then Belinda disappeared around the knoll. Immediately Brody turned

Even if a lot of clubs should follow Club 18 into that next block, thus technically retaining jurisdiction for Fifty-Second, the thoroughfare couldn't be called "Swing Street" anymore. "Swing Street" was a particular block and the spirit (and spirits) that made it can't be put into a moving van.

The West Coast will be pleased to know that the national company of "Oklahoma!" is on the way. It'll be months before it gets there but it's finally fought its way out of Philadelphia after 19 weeks and started to fulfill the season's touring promises by opening for two weeks in Washington. After that, two weeks in Baltimore.

Bobbysock note: Wednesday at 9 p. m. EWT. CBS network. Frankie Sinatra, naturally.

There'll be a few changes this season, but the main thing, of course, is Frankie's vocalizing. There'll be no set guest star policy, but a guest may be used occasionally. There's no girl vocalist this time either.

The premiere is from Hollywood, which makes the New York police department very happy.

DIET AND HEALTH

Preventing the Common Cold

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

WHETHER in time of war or in time of peace, absenteeism from industry is a problem that needs prompt solution. Probably the greatest cause for absenteeism is the ordinary cold. It is, colds for the most part occur during the colder weather, but there are times, even during the summer months, when epidemics of colds seem to get started and sweep through large groups of people.

In industrial plants there are three kinds of measures which are needed to keep epidemics of colds from occurring. First, there should be proper working conditions and services for safeguarding the employees' health. Second, the employees should receive proper instruction in protecting themselves; and third, the employees should do certain things to help maintain their health and well-being.

Heat and Ventilation

For example, the management can provide properly heated and ventilated work rooms so that there will be no unnecessary exposure to either cold or excessive heat. Then, too, there can be protection against drafts.

All eating utensils can be properly washed and sterilized to keep them from acting as a means of carrying germs. It is a good plan, when an epidemic occurs, to have the washing and sterilizing processes checked to make sure that they are satisfactory and efficient.

Of course, anyone engaging in the handling of or the preparation of food should be sent home if he has a cold. Workers should also have properly heated locker rooms where they can change their clothes.

Cold Prevention

In instructing employees about helping to avoid colds the following things are important: (1) They should be taught to avoid contact with persons who are sneezing or coughing or who have any signs of a cold, as much as possible. (2) They should stay away from others when they have a cold themselves, especially during the first few days, when colds are most contagious. (3) They should wash their hands always before eating and it may even be a good plan to avoid shaking hands when having a cold. (4) They should eat a well-balanced diet. (5) They should get plenty of sleep.

(6) They should avoid fatigue and overindulgence. (7) They should exercise regularly after work, if the type of work they do not require much physical effort. (8) They should wear enough clothing to be warm and should put on additional clothing when going out in cold weather. (9) If a cold should start they should go to bed, keep warm, and take plenty of fluids. Of course, if there is fever, chest pains, weakness and aching, the cold may not be an ordinary one, but may indicate the beginning of an influenzal or pneumococcal attack and the physician should be called at once.

Since colds are most infectious at the beginning, it is a good plan when a cold first starts to go home and stay there until the infectious period is past and also to help keep the cold from getting worse.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, September 12

AN exceptional opportunity for placing the affairs upon a sound, secure and lucrative basis by hard work, sound tactics and a penetrating grasp of some sort of unusual opening, in which there is enhanced prestige and position as well as financial gain. The situation demands keen analysis, application, hard work and shrewd manipulation of basic and far-reaching factors. Social, domestic and professional stability are away. Then came pictures of the surrender ceremonies shown in newspapers across the nation. Pictures made a few hours before, transmitted by radio across half the surface of the earth and presented to us at the breakfast or dinner table.

Magic, all of this! Undoubtedly—black magic! Not very long ago, anybody who had prophesied such goings on would have been locked up in a mad-house under iron.

The idiotic part of the black magic was that, owing to the vagaries of that non-existent boundary known as the International Date Line, we heard and saw these events half a day before they had happened. "Foolish and foolish," said Alice to the White Rabbit.

Foolisher and foolish will be the inventions that science and the manufacturers will thrust on us. I'm a sort of slow moving female.

I had only caught up with the scientific wonders of the last era during the non-productive calm of the war. Had barely learned to plug an electric toaster cord into the side wall without blowing out a fuse. And now I tremble at the new appliances and labor-saving devices that will baffle me.

The contrivance that I most fear is a thought-reading machine. I insist on keeping a few thoughts to myself and quite believe that language is given to us to conceal our good and evil thoughts.

Had some evil ideas V-J-day when I heard about a few of the sermons that had heralded the coming of peace. Many Washington clergymen went "sectarian." They adroitly advised their congregations to remember that the church in which they were praying was the only "true church." They urged their congregations to follow the teachings of their particular faith and to be forever aloof from other religions.

Splendid way, this, to create peace on earth! The clergy is supposed to speak with the voice of God. And yet there some of them were, on the day that formally announced the world's return to sanity, standing in the pulpits in the capital of the world, setting creed against creed and sowing suspicion in already anxious minds.

Churches, all churches, should look earnestly into themselves.

They should take some of the blame for the recent horrors that overtook the universe in the last war. A wave of anti-religious feeling is certain to sweep the world when gratitude for the end of the war dies down. Communism is going to do its destructive work too if the churches are not prepared to justify their own existence and the faith offered them by millions of eager people.

their ponies were tied to a thick log hitching post before the rambling bungalows.

Turning away, she walked, almost silently, through the deserted dining quarters into the living room. She was so quiet that she was directly back of Brody before he heard her.

He whirled, then swung back again, not bothering to make a pretense of doing anything except what he actually was. He was watching Belinda trudge down the deep-rutted road.

His voice sounded like a creaking metal sign. "Look at her. Slog along in all that mud. Kids are so stubborn nowadays. They make themselves feel even worse than they have to."

Sandra moved closer. "Yes. They do. How well I know."

"It just don't make sense. Lindy's better fixed than any kid in Copper Creek. She's better fixed than lots of kids in even bigger places and she looks like a little tramp without a penny to her name. On purpose. It just about kills me, Miss Edwards."

"I feel sorry for her, too, Brody."

Just then Belinda disappeared around the knoll. Immediately Brody turned around. "Please don't, ma'am. Leastways, don't ever let her know it. She don't want no pity. That's my trouble. I somehow can't keep from clucking over her like an old hen with a baby chick. She don't like it."

"She should have a mother."

The old cowpuncher gave a humorless chuckle. "There's several willing. But Mr. Adams hasn't got any like poison. So does Lindy."

"But how horrible!" Sandra took a sip of her coffee. Suddenly it left a bad taste in her mouth. And it was really excellent coffee.

"I feel sorry for her, too, Brody."

Just then Belinda disappeared around the knoll. Immediately Brody turned around. "Please don't, ma'am. Leastways, don't ever let her know it. That's where he goes when he's well, when he wants to get away from people."

"But there is no one here yet—"

COUNTY TO GO
BACK TO PEACE
TIME OCTOBER 1

Circleville and other Pickaway county communities which changed on April 1, will revert to Eastern Standard Time on October 1.

The time was changed to Eastern War Time on April 1, after an ordinance had been passed by city council.

Officially, war time will be abolished as of September 30, Congress leaders decided Tuesday, if the Senate will also pass the bill. Indications were that it would go through without a hitch.

On the proclamation of the ending of war time, clocks will go back one hour. They were advanced an hour on January 20, 1942 as a war measure.

The Wilson plantation, at Wilson, Ark., is the largest cotton farm in the world.

Circleville Sailor Writes Home About Experiences In Tokyo

JOHN HEISKELL ON PIEDMONT IN TOKYO BAY

Former Post Office Employee Tells Of Evidences Of Neglect And Damage

First Circleville man to report from Japan is John R. Heiskell, MAM third class, husband of Mrs. Charlotte Heiskell, 335 East Union street.

Heiskell, who is stationed aboard the USS Piedmont, wrote his wife and mother a letter, which was postmarked Tokyo Bay, August 29.

His ship, part of the famed Third Fleet, which doubled as the Fifth Fleet, was in Tokyo Bay when several Japanese subs surrendered to the United States Navy.

In a letter to his family, he described the situation in Tokyo Bay. Battleships anchored there, he related, were badly beaten up.

All the naval bases he saw, the letter said, were in neglect, with debris scattered over the docks and streets, and broken windows in dock buildings.

After visiting Tokyo Bay, the Piedmont steamed around the main home island of Japan into Yokosuka naval base. He wrote a letter there, date September 1, in which he described conditions in that part of Japan.

Even after getting into Japan proper, he added, some men left the crews of American ships returning to the United States under the Navy's points program for discharge.

Perhaps on one of the first American ships to get to Japan in the great invasion sea armada, MAM Third Class Heiskell said many very interesting things had happened to him in his trip through the Marshall Islands, the Philippines and on into Japan proper.

Joining the Navy in March, 1944, he was regimental mail clerk at Great Lakes, Ill., for 8 months.

When he first went to sea in March, 1945, he left San Francisco, California, on the USS Frank Knox and shipped to the Marshalls.

After a tour of duty there, he transferred over to the Piedmont and continued his cruise of the Marshalls and later the Philippines.

The son of Mrs. Myrill Heiskell, of the East Union street address, was he employed at the Circleville post office prior to entering the service.

His address is: John R. Heiskell, MAM 3/C, 9412352, USS Piedmont, (AD17), c/o Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, California.
